

Commutative Property of Multiplication

Changing the order of factors does not change their product. It is also called the Order Property of Multiplication.

Example: For all numbers a and b , $a \times b = b \times a$.