

rate

A comparison by division of two quantities measured with different units.