

random sample

In statistics, a sample in which every individual in the population has the same chance of being included.