

How to make: Make the title and two large rabbits out of construction paper. Make carrots out of orange construction paper. Write a Basic or Elephant Word on one side of each carrot. Label a box Mr. MacGregor's Basket, staple the box to the board, and place the carrots face down in the box. Attach a box of thumbtacks to the bottom of the board.

How to use: Students work in pairs. Each student chooses a rabbit. One student picks a carrot from the basket and, without looking at the word, hands it to the other student. The other student says the word aloud. The first student spells the word aloud. If the student spells the word correctly, he or she tacks the carrot next to his or her rabbit. If the student spells the word incorrectly, the carrot goes back into the basket. Students take turns spelling words. When all the words have been spelled, the student whose rabbit has the most carrots wins. Use the game to review words from one unit at a time or from all five units in the cycle.
