

Forest

The aye aye has large eyes that help it see at night. The aye aye's third finger is very long and thin. It uses it for digging food out of trees.

Rain Forest

Water that stays on leaves can cause disease. The leaves of many rainforest plants have pointed ends that allow rainwater to drip off.

Desert

Light-colored fur helps the jackrabbit blend into its surroundings. Its large ears help it keep cool in the desert by giving off heat.

Tundra

The musk ox's habitat is covered with snow much of the year. How might the musk ox's thick fur help it survive?
