Pretend that for one day you are able to see into the future. Now write a story for your classmates, telling what happened. Be sure your story has a beginning, a middle, and an end.

I peeked through the curtains of my bedroom window. I was totally baffled. Yesterday we had a lawn and some hedges. Now the ground was covered with cement. The sign on the mailbox said “The Conants.” Who are they? My family is the Millers.

Maybe someday we will be able to see into the future. Earth might be really different in some interesting ways. I think it would be great to see into the future. Some people disagree. Let me tell you why I think they are wrong.

Knowing the future might be shocking, but it would also be interesting. I would like to know what my neighborhood will look like in fifty years. I want to know which family will live in my house. Then I could write them a letter and hide it somewhere in the house. Maybe they would find it later.

Also, I want to find out what will happen in space travel. I hope we will land on Mars and make a colony there. If I could look into the future, I could find out.

If you think that knowing about the future would spoil everything, just think about the past. You like knowing about the past, don’t you? You would probably also like knowing about the future.