Families in Many Cultures
by Heather Adamson,
Capstone Press, 2008
Whether large or small, close or faraway, every family is alike in many ways. In this book, children learn how their family is like other families around the world.

Lots of Grandparents
by Shelly Rotner and Sheila Kelly, Millbrook, 2001
Pictures and brief text present grandparents working, playing, relaxing, and loving their grandchildren.

Brothers and Sisters
by Laura Dwight,
Star Bright, 2003
This photo essay introduces sibling groups who play together, fight with one another, and help one another.

The Kingfisher Book of Family Poems
by Belinda Hollyer, editor,
Kingfisher, 2003
This collection of 159 classic poems celebrates all kinds of families and all kinds of feelings.

We Had a Picnic This Sunday Past
by Jacqueline Woodson,
Hyperion, 2007
Experience the annual family picnic through the eyes of Teeka, an African American girl who describes her many relatives and the foods they bring.

All Kinds of Families!
by Mary Ann Hoberman,
Little Brown Books for Young Readers, 2009
Readers will enjoy learning all about families, made up of objects as well as humans.

Waiting For May
by Janet Morgan Stoeke,
Penguin Group, 2007
A young boy anxiously awaits the arrival of his new baby sister, whom his family is adopting from China.

Dear Primo
by Duncan Tonatiuh,
Abrams Books for Young Readers, 2010
Cousins Charlie and Carlitos compare their lives in the United States and Mexico.

Aunt Lucy Went to Buy a Hat
by Alice Low,
HarperCollins, 2004
Scatterbrained Aunt Lucy needs a hat, but gets sidetracked by all the choices in the store.

I Love Saturdays y Domingos
by Alma Flor Ada,
Atheneum, 2002
A girl spends Saturdays with her English-speaking grandparents and Sundays with her abuelo and abuela.

Grandfather’s Story Cloth
by Linda Gerdner and Sarah Langford, Shen’s Books, 2008
A Hmong boy learns about his grandfather’s life in Laos and his escape to the United States as the elderly man shares the memories illustrated on his story cloth.

Shopping in Many Cultures
by Martha E.H. Rustad,
Capstone Press, 2009
Dynamic photographs depict people around the world shopping at markets, malls, and grocery stores.

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt Independent Books

A Family
Children learn about the members of one unique family, including a grandmother and grandfather.

What Families Do
This book examines common activities that family members do together.

Jobs at Home
Children learn about common household duties.